BINGO LAND

STORIES FROM THE REAL WORLD & CYBERSPACE

Charity Bingo nights Raise Thousands

Since holding its first charity Bingo night last year, VFW Post 449 of West Warwick, Rhode Island has raised thousands of dollars for local organizations—all in the name of giving back to a community that's been so supportive of its veterans. "The veterans' community greatly appreciates the support that it gets from locals," said George Russell, who organizes Post 449's various fundraising events. "This is our way to say, 'hey, we appreciate that.'" The Charity Bingo series was born of Post 449's creative endeavor to stay afloat amid some unexpected cost increases. After embarking last year on what it called the "Road to $40K," the West Warwick-based post ended up surpassing its goal by more than $10,000. The money was raised through a series of fundraisers, including flea markets, trivia and live music events. And once it had received its license from the state police, Bingo nights proved particularly lucrative for the post. "They've been off the hook," Russell said of the Charity Bingo events. Last year, the post raised some $23,000 for various charities. And it's on track to soar past that this year.

Bingo Helps Habitat for Humanity

Putnam County Habitat for Humanity of Ottawa recently held their third annual tool and purse bingo event. Ottawa American Legion hosted this year's event; People First volunteers served food prior to the bingo games and live music was featured throughout. Leading the show as emcee was 106.3 Big Kahuna. In addition to several Bingo games to win purses or tools, the evening also included raffle drawings. In July 2023, the Dudgeon family broke ground on the 14th Putnam County Habitat for Humanity home. The family partnered in the construction of this house dedicated last November. Since its inception in 2009, PCHFH has built 12 new homes and rebuilt an entire house. Homeowners purchase their homes through low- or zero-interest mortgages provided by PCHFH or through

Feeding monarchs

The adult monarch consumes nectar from flowers, minerals from mud puddles and liquids from fruits. To attract them to your backyard, leave out slices of banana, oranges or watermelon, and plant a variety of flowering plants.

The monarch caterpillar (the larvae stage of the monarch butterfly) feeds only on the leaves of milkweed plants. From these it gains all the nutrition needed to change into the adult form.

BOB ON BINGO

By Bob Whittmore

■ Planning Vacation Around Bingo

I recently received an email about planning your vacation around Bingo. It was from my sister Diane in Bloomington, Indiana. She writes:

“Dear Bob. I remember some time ago you wrote a column about the fun of spending the night in towns where they play Bingo. I remember taking your advice and going on the Internet to look for Bingo halls. I simply got out a map of my expected route, figured out where I’d like to stay, then Googled the names of the cities where I wanted to stop for the night adding the word “Bingo” on the search line. I got a wealth of information.

“Additionally, I found out that many rural communities print nice looking brochures and travel guides. So, while I was online I also researched the addresses of the Tourism Bureau and/or Chamber of Commerce for the towns I planned to visit, wrote letters requesting any tourist information they had. It worked.

Along the way I discovered some really neat small towns, great mom and pop motels, wonderful food, and some wonderful Bingo halls. I even won a few dollars.

“The real fun was getting off the Interstate onto some the nation’s older, two-lane roads and meeting people. I loved the experience and plan to do it again this summer. Thanks again for a great idea. See you at Bingo. —Diane”

I would love to hear from you about your experiences of playing Bingo in other cities. I know my favorite place to play is a big hall on Airline Highway, west of New Orleans; and one of the best things about it is the Cajun food.

I’m lucky, over the past years I have been in all fifty states and played Bingo in most of them. I have discovered something interesting—the smaller the city, the less formal the sessions are. All the years I lived in Las Vegas I got used to Bingo halls that had posted rules and put a high emphasis on sticking by those rules. The moral is: When you do travel the country and play in small halls, be prepared for Bingo games that can be both fun and confusing.

But no matter where you play, the important thing is that you DO play. Some Bingo halls are suffering. They need your help to stay active and alive. Bingo is a wonderful game, but it will only continue to be available IF we patronize and support it. Next time: Those Boisterous Bingo Biddies.

Just Like Cats & Dogs by Dave T. Phipps

DEAR AUNT BINGO

by Bonnie Mitchell

And They're Off! Making Noise

Dear Aunt Bing

My mother and I go to a Bingo hall in Illinois. The problem is this. While the last part of the Bingo game is going on, there are also people gambling on another game that is being run by some Bingo players there. As the Bingo numbers are being called, these women are yelling back and forth about their numbers coming in on this so-called "racing game."

What I want to know is, isn't this illegal? The people that run the hall don't stop this and the yelling that goes on back and forth for the racing game is very disruptive to the other Bingo players. I was told the reason it goes on is that someone's husband runs the place and it's his wife that is doing this. Isn't there something or someone that can do something about this?

—Lucille, via e-mail

Dear Lucille,

Technically speaking, any type of gambling that goes on in a Bingo hall that is not part of the sanctioned games is illegal. That would include a quick hand of poker during the break, someone selling chances for a sports pool, even someone betting someone else a $1 that they can't hold their breath for two minutes. As long as a cash wager is involved, it constitutes gambling, and should not be taking place in a licensed Bingo hall.—Aunt Bingo

Licence to Carry... A Dauber?

We always carry a fully stocked Bingo bag with us in our car. We have daubers, pens, lucky coins and Barney the Bingo Dragon with us at all times, because who knows when the irrepressible urge to play Bingo will hit us, so we are always prepared. This has seemed perfectly rational behavior until recently when an incident happened that made us question our state of preparedness.

One bright day we were on our way to play Bingo when flashing red and blue lights showed in our rear windows and we pulled over. "I wasn't speeding, was I?" asked Kate.

"No, you certainly were not," I answered. "I wonder what's up." The tall young policewoman came to Kate's side of the car as she reached into the back seat for her purse where she stores it in back of the passenger seat. The policewoman rapped sharply on the window, which Kate had neglected to roll down. With her left hand working the window, she fumbled for her purse with her right hand and came up with the Bingo bag and one bright pink dauber clutched threateningly.

The officer assumed a somewhat defensive stance but when she suddenly realized what she was looking she burst out laughing. In fact, we all laughed until the tears came. "That's the first time I've ever thought I was being threatened by a dauber," said the officer, getting her laughter under control. "Now perhaps I could see your driver's license."

Kate fumbled out her license while the woman told us our rear license plate was not clearly visible as the plastic cover had darkened and needed to be replaced or removed. She said she also was a Bingo player and quickly recognized Kate's "weapon" especially when she saw the elephant head on the dauber. "You ladies have a good time today," she said as she wrote a warning ticket. "And get that license plate fixed."

You'd think that would be enough with the daubers for one day, but it wasn't. When we got to the Bingo hall, we found they were giving away bags of daubers. We were immensely pleased as you can never have too many daubers. Kate likes to give them away to new players.

As we chose our seats a great swapping frenzy was occurring, people wanting more blue, purple or green and ready to swap two for one for the colors they wanted. This made no sense to me, but I joined in anyway and we ended up with many orange and pink ones that did the job as well as any other color as far as I could tell.

"I refill my daubers," said a young woman. "I buy ink and refill them as I don't want to add to the pollution in the world." She sounded a little sanctimonious to me, but I went ahead setting out three dozen daubers for everyone's amusement. I guess I was still a little giggly from the police encounter.

"You do it your way, I'll do it mine," said Kate, reaching under the table for our bring-along Bingo bag. It was gone and Kate began a frantic search. Just then an announcement came over the loudspeaker that someone had left a Bingo bag at the cashier's desk and would the owner please come get it. It has 'Outta my way, I'm off to Bingo' printed on the front.

"That would be mine," said Kate getting up to go fetch it. "I think I will officially name this Dauber Mania Day."

State regulators say a popular fundraiser that combines Bingo with the game concept of the show Name That Tune is not in the cards under current Nebraska law. And that's left a lot of nonprofits and charitable organizations scrambling for a new jackpot. Ironhawk Juniors, a youth triathlon program, has used music bingo at their fundraising event for several years. "We do one fundraising event a year, and this is it," said Ironhawk Juniors President Erin Sullivan. The non-profit sponsors a free summer program for girls ages 7 to 14. "Everything we do is free. Plus, we provide any equipment that a child might need," Sullivan said. So, when the call came from state regulators that the popular game could not be used as a fund-raising tool, it hit a sour note. Piper doesn't understand why it's an issue since it's set up as free-will donations. "We've always enforced it," Nebraska Lottery and Charitable Gaming Division Director Brian Rockey said, "If it's in the statute, we have a responsibility to see that it's carried out," Rockey said. He said there are several laws at play. I gather there are folks who think maybe it's time those laws are changed.

The Most Important Meal of the Day

Folks commonly refer to breakfast as “The most important meal of the day”, and I suppose it is. It’s the meal that “breaks the fast” from last night’s evening meal to this morning’s first meal. It replenishes your supply of glucose to boost your energy levels and alertness, while also providing other essential nutrients required for good health.

Many studies have shown the health benefits of eating breakfast. It improves your energy levels and ability to concentrate in the short term, and can help with better weight management, reduced risk of type 2 diabetes and heart disease in the long term.

A good, healthy breakfast menu should include items that boost your calcium, increase your energy, and provide your body with some colon-loving fiber.

Thank you, Google!

All that said, let’s take a look at what Elle has for breakfast during a typical month.

Keep in mind, I do not twirl out of bed, ready to break a few eggs and fry up a pound of bacon. I usually wake up with one eye closed and I stumble into the kitchen, trying not to fall over my own feet. I’m rarely hungry at this time of the day, and sometimes the thought of food puts me off. However, I have to eat something while chugging down a half-dozen assorted pills, so...on we go.

All breakfast meals include one cup of coffee—my only cup of coffee for the day.

-A breakfast bar. Whatever we happen to have. Could be a Nutri-grain bar, might be a cereal bar of some sort, or even a Pop-Tart.

-Cold cereal. This involves two items (cereal and milk) that you have to combine, and is therefore a recipe, and Elle doesn’t like to cook with one eye open, so this one is eaten less often. Plus, it’s cold.

-Nuke it. I choose one: Microwaved scrambled egg, microwave bacon, microwave breakfast sausage, etc. Close to cooking, but easier to do with limited vision. No time for toast, just grab a slice of whole grain bread (Look! It’s our friend, Fiber!) to eat with the nuked protein choice.

-A donut. Classic.

-Leftovers. Leftover pizza? It has bread, meat, cheese and maybe something that passes as a vegetable. I’m counting the pizza sauce as a fruit... or another vegetable. It’ll do.

-Leftovers, part 2. Simpler foods without the spiciness of things like pizza. This could be mashed potatoes, rice side dishes, or macaroni and cheese.

-Cornbread. I live in Texas. There’s usually some cornbread or cornbread muffins lying around. Cornbread can be eaten plain, or with butter, or with jam, or with syrup, or with honey. It’s quite versatile.

-Cake, cookies, pie... NO. I’m not a barbarian.

-Tamales. So delicious.

-Pretzel Rods. Don’t judge me.

-Biscuits. Ha! No... those take 15 minutes, plus I have to preheat the oven. We only eat biscuits at dinnertime. LEFT-OVER biscuits are pretty good breakfast food, though.

It might not be my “best meal of the day”, but at least I eat something. The rest of my daily meals include much healthier options, like vegetables, lean meats, whole grains, and sometimes fruit. I guess ol’ Elle is just not a morning person... or a morning chef.

Salmon Burgers

Enjoy a salmon burger, a delicious and budget-friendly meal option.

Affordable, Sustainable, and Simply Delicious: Canned Salmon for Budget-Conscious Cooks

Here's a stellar pantry staple I don't write about often enough, so let's dive into some canned salmon.

There's no doubt that salmon is among the healthiest of foods. Yet fresh salmon is expensive, seasonal and sometimes hard to find, particularly salmon that's wild caught rather than farmed. So, while we wait for fresh salmon to go on sale, canned salmon is an affordable choice for the frugal and fabulous pantry.

It's crucial to scrutinize salmon labels for quality. Farmed salmon, raised in crowded pens with antibiotics and toxins, poses health risks. Avoid Atlantic salmon, which is farmed due to overfishing. Opt instead for wild-caught Alaskan pink salmon, sustainably harvested in well-managed fisheries. Not only is it ethically sound, but also budget-friendly.

If you've never tried canned salmon, here's what you should know. Canned salmon comes in two varieties: with the skin and bones (less expensive) and without (more expensive).

If you buy salmon with the skin and bones, there's a tiny little drawback. Namely, skin and bones. You're getting a section of the whole fish (scales and organs removed) then pressure cooked right in the can. The bones are soft and completely edible, in fact, they're highly nutritious. You can choose to eat everything in the can, or you can pick out the skin and bones, leaving only the fillets.

If you or your family feel squeamish about the bones, I suggest you remove the obvious bits and add a handful of slivered almonds to any recipe using canned salmon to completely camouflage any remaining bones.

Canned salmon is so versatile; you can make sandwiches, salads, chowders, pasta and more. But a family favorite is salmon patties -- crisp on the outside, tender on the inside and bursting with flavor. This adaptable recipe also makes awesome burgers or little appetizer cakes.

SALMON PATTIES

Yield: 4 to 6 servings

Total Time: 1 hour

- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup green onion, minced, divided
- 1 teaspoon lemon zest
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 3/4 teaspoon Old Bay seafood seasoning
- 1/2 teaspoon low sodium soy sauce
- 1/2 cup celery, finely minced
- 2 eggs
- 1 (14.75 ounce) can pink salmon
- 1 tablespoon slivered almonds, optional
- 1 3/4 cups panko breadcrumbs, divided
- 1 tablespoon everything bagel seasoning
- 2 tablespoons vegetable or olive oil, for frying

In a mixing bowl, combine mayonnaise, half (1/4 cup) of the green onions, lemon zest and juice, Old Bay and soy sauce. Reserve about 1/2 cup of this mixture to use as a dipping sauce or spread later. Into the remaining mayo mixture add celery, remaining green onion, beaten eggs and salmon. For this purpose, I remove the skin and bones, but it's your choice. Add the almonds, if desired. Stir to combine. Thoroughly fold 1 cup of panko breadcrumbs into this mix. Refrigerate for at least 20 minutes. Meanwhile, in a shallow bowl, combine the remaining panko and everything bagel seasoning.

When you're ready to cook your patties, place a skillet on medium-low heat and add 1 tablespoon of oil.

Divide the mixture and form 4 or 6 patties. Press each patty into the panko mix, covering all sides. The patties are sticky until they're coated, then they're much easier to work with. Place into the heated skillet in batches. Cook on the first side for 4 minutes before carefully flipping over until fully cooked. Repeat with remaining patties, adding oil as needed. Serve with the reserved dipping sauce or as a burger with the usual accompaniments.

So, next time you're stocking your pantry, I hope a few cans of salmon find their way back upstream to your shelf.

Bad Haircut, No Lie

Hair today, gone tomorrow, but the memories of a bad haircut last forever.
 –Ms. Know-It-All

I'm sitting here with my feet up, a drink by my side, and my laptop on my lap as I write this column. I don't feel guilty even though my husband is washing dishes in the kitchen and he just put a load of clothes in the washer. Oops, I perhaps forgot to tell him that April 7 is National No Housework Day. My neighbor calls him my kitchen bi!#!ch because he does a lot of housekeeping chores. Don't get me wrong, I also do my share as we both can't stand clutter; however, I tend to organize, rearrange, and make sure there's a place for everything and our home is tidy.

As a teacher at day's end, my students picked up trash, put stuff away, and sometimes cleaned their desktops with a spritz of cleaner. They then put their chairs on their desktops to make it easier for the janitor. My, those janitors loved me and in return they took care of anything I needed maintenance wise. Anyway, let the housework go today and feel no guilt. Go to Bingo instead. On another topic, April 7th was my wedding anniversary with my first husband as opposed to October 15th with my second and most loved hubby, Robert. My ex was not averse to doing household chores either, but I was averse to him. In due time I tossed his sorry carcass into the discard pile and chose better the second time around.

Do you love April Fool's Day with its stupid tricks, jokes, and untruths piling up all day long? I usually include something outlandish in this April column to honor this day, but I'm not going to do that this time around. Instead, I'll share a true Easter story with you that occurred in April years ago. Our church youth group was in charge of a service the week before Easter, so we carefully planned a small talk, poems, scripture readings, and hymns. Unfortunately for me, my mother decided the night before the service that I needed a haircut and perm, so she made an appointment with a local gal who was in training. Notice the key words in training. I wanted bangs and she cut my bangs alright, almost to my hairline followed by the perm. Two hours later, I looked like a demented poodle with curly hair and bangs standing out from my head like a weird halo. Needless to say, I cried copious tears. Program night, I straightened my shoulders, held my head high, and read my poem; not one person mentioned my new look and for that I was grateful.

If you have siblings, or step/half siblings, don't forget April 10 is Sibling Day. I am an only daughter with eleven brothers who used to refer to me as a spoiled princess. These days though, I have evolved into their adorable Sissy and that's no lie, even though April 4th is Tell a Lie Day. True confession, I have two brothers, not eleven, and I dearly love them. Please note, it was not a lie but totally true that I was the victim of a crazed scissor wielding hair butcher who gave me a look only a mother could love. Until next month, may Lady Luck blow you kisses as you dance out the door with dollars, win big! Contact me: nlpvw6172@gmail.com

Do I Need to File a Tax Return?

Dear Sam,

What are the IRS income tax filing requirements for retirees this tax season? I didn't file a tax return the past two years because my income was below the filing threshold, but I got a part-time job late last year, so I'm wondering if I'm required to file this year.

—Retired Worker

Dear Retired,

Whether or not you are required to file a federal income tax return this year will depend on how much you earned last year (in 2023), as well as the source of the income, your age and filing status.

Here's a rundown of this tax season's IRS tax filing requirement thresholds.

For most people, this is pretty straightforward. If your 2023 gross income - which includes all taxable income, not counting your Social Security benefits, unless you are married and filing separately - was below the threshold for your filing status and age, you probably won't have to file. But if it's over, you will.

* Single: $13,850 ($15,700 if you're 65 or older by Jan. 1, 2023).

* Married filing jointly: $27,700 ($29,200 if you or your spouse is 65 or older; or $30,700 if you're both over 65).

* Married filing separately: $5 at any age.

* Head of household: $20,800 ($22,650 if 65 or older).

* Qualifying surviving spouse: $27,700 ($29,200 if 65 or older).

To get a detailed breakdown on federal filing requirements, along with information on taxable and nontaxable income, call the IRS at 800-829-3676 and ask them to mail you a free copy of the 1040 and 1040-SR Instructions for Tax Year 2023, or you can see it online at IRS.gov/pub/irs-pdf/i1040gi.pdf.

Check Here To

Be aware that there are other financial situations that can require you to file a tax return, even if your gross income falls below the IRS filing requirements. For example, if you earned more than $400 from self-employment in 2023, owe any taxes on an IRA, Health Savings Account or an alternative minimum tax, or get premium tax credits because you, your spouse or a dependent is enrolled in a Health Insurance Marketplace plan, you'll need to file.

You'll also need to file if you're receiving Social Security benefits, and one-half of your benefits plus your other gross income and any tax-exempt interest exceeds $25,000, or $32,000 if you're married and filing jointly.

To figure all this out, the IRS offers an online tax tool that asks a series of questions that will help you determine if you're required to file, or if you should file because you're due a refund. It takes less than 15 minutes to complete.

You can access this tool at IRS.gov/Help/ITA - click on "Do I Need to File a Tax Return?" Or you can get assistance over the phone by calling the IRS helpline at 800-829-1040.

Check Your State

Even if you're not required to file a federal tax return this year, don't assume that you're also excused from filing state income taxes. The rules for your state might be very different. Check with your state tax agency before concluding that you're entirely in the clear. For links to state tax agencies see Taxadmin.org/fta-members.

Tax Preparation Help If you find that you do need to file a tax return this year, you can free file through the IRS at IRS.gov/FreeFile if your 2023 adjusted gross income was below $79,000.

Or, if you need some help, contact the Tax Counseling for the Elderly (or TCE) program. Sponsored by the IRS, TCE provides free tax preparation and counseling to middle and low-income taxpayers, age 60 and older. Call 800-906-9887 or visit IRS.treasury.gov/freetaxprep to locate services near you.

You can also get tax preparation assistance through the AARP Foundation Tax-Aide service. Call 888-227-7669 or visit AARP.org/findtaxhelp for more information. You don't have to be an AARP member to use this service.

number of decks of cards or mix of playing rules. There is one exception and you'll find it below.

Multi-Deck Game

Regardless of the playing rules, use the following strategy when facing a dealer's seven up-card.

Double down if allowed, otherwise hit if holding

- Hard 10 and 11
  - Pair of 5s
- Split if holding:
- Pair of As, 2s, 3s, and 7s and 8s

Hit if holding:

- Hard 5 through 9
  - Hard 12 through 16
  - A-2 through A-6
  - Pair of 4s and 6s
- Stand if holding:
- Hard 17 through 20
  - A-7 through A-9
  - Pair of 9s and 10s.

What if you are playing a double-deck game? The playing strategy for a double-deck game is identical to the above multiple-deck game except for one change:

- If the rules specify doubling down after pair splitting is allowed, split a pair of 6s (instead of hitting) against a dealer's 7 up-card. More on this topic at: <https://www.888casino.com/blog/playing-hands-against-7>

How to Play Against Dealer's 7 Up-card

When a dealer shows a 7 up-card, they have about a 26% chance of busting and about a 74% chance of getting to a final hand that totals 17 through 21 (rule dependent). Because of the latter, we have to be more aggressive when we are dealt a stiff hand (hit rather than stand) and less aggressive when we are dealt a two-card soft hand (hit rather than double down).

Fortunately for blackjack players, the playing strategy against a casino dealer's 7 up-card is nearly the same for any

DEAR PAW : My dog Trey is a 3-year-old mixed breed, mostly Lab, who pulls at his leash every time we go out for a walk. I don't want to use a choke collar, because it seems painful and counterproductive to punish him every time he tries to pull ahead. How can I get Trey to walk next to me and not tug all the time? — Bill in New Orleans

DEAR BILL: Dogs love being outside and exploring. That's a big reason why Trey is tugging at his leash—he wants to run and explore everything in the world. But that's not possible in the city.

You're probably saying, "Oh, this is where Sam tells us to reinforce basic obedience training." And you're right. It's important for Trey to follow your commands, but that's just one element to leash training a dog.

When you pull on the leash to slow Trey down, he will automatically pull in the opposite direction. This is a reflex action. The more you pull, the more they dig in.

So instead, try a misdirection-reward strategy. Give the command "heel" and have Trey walk calmly beside you, with the leash slack. Whenever he gets ahead of you (before the tug of war starts), stop and change direction. He'll turn to go in the direction you're heading, and when he does, give him lots of praise and maybe (at first) a little treat. Do this every time he tries to move ahead of you.

If Trey tends to pull really hard, change from a collar and leash to a chest harness. This prevents injury and can make it easier to control him.
